

Lectureship position in Probability and Statistics at the University of Birmingham

Applications are invited for a Lectureship position in the School of Mathematics at the University of Birmingham, in the area of Probability and Modern Statistics, broadly defined, including any area of statistics, probability theory, computational data analysis, machine learning, or related areas. The position is full-time and permanent.

Detailed information about the position can be found under <http://www.jobs.ac.uk/job/BFD545/lecturer-in-probability-and-modern-statistics/>

For information on the department and the Birmingham Combinatorics and

Probability group, please visit

<http://web.mat.bham.ac.uk/combinatorics/>

Application deadline: 13 December 2017

For informal enquiries, please contact Professor Daniela Kühn, d.kuhn@bham.ac.uk or Professor Deryk Osthus, d.osthus@bham.ac.uk.